

How to Plan a Road Scholar Learning Adventure for Your Group

Looking to try something new with your group? Plan a Road Scholar Group Learning Adventure!

Perfect for Lifelong Learning Institutes, family reunions, birding, hiking and bicycling clubs, and groups of all kinds. We handle all the details, you take all the credit.

5 Easy Steps for Group Organizers

1 Select Your Program and Pick a Date

We recommend you plan at least six months in advance for a program in the United States and Canada, and nine months in advance for International programs.

2 Get Your Group on Board

If you need them, we can provide promotional materials to advertise the program to your group.

3 Enroll

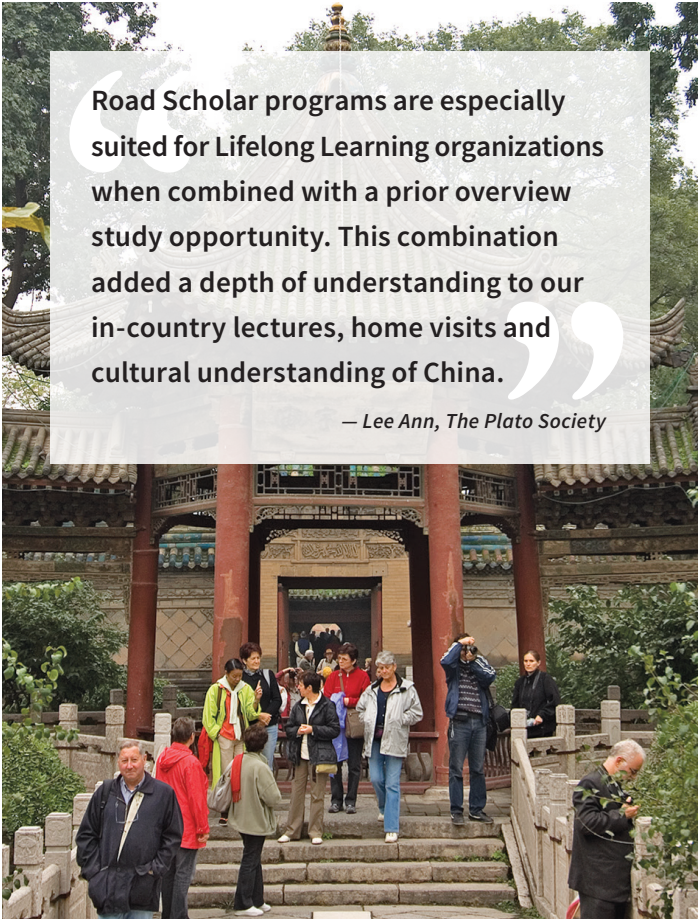

Call in with our special toll-free number just for groups, or for exclusive dates, enroll online with a private group code.

4 Need Airfare?

For programs in the U.S. and Canada, you'll need to make your own travel arrangements. However, for international programs, let us know in advance so we can help!

5 Get Ready for Adventure!

When your program begins, our experienced Group Leaders will take care of everything and your group will have the learning adventure of a lifetime.

Road Scholar programs are especially suited for Lifelong Learning organizations when combined with a prior overview study opportunity. This combination added a depth of understanding to our in-country lectures, home visits and cultural understanding of China.

— Lee Ann, The Plato Society

We Take Care of All the Details.

We have organized Road Scholar Groups programs for hundreds of groups over the years, so we know exactly what you'll need. You can relax, knowing you'll have a wonderfully planned program. You'll have a special toll-free telephone number so your group can enroll and pay tuition directly with us, and individually prepared marketing materials.

From start to finish, we're here to answer any questions your group might have.

CALL: toll free at (877) 209-4634 | EMAIL: groups@roadscholar.org | VISIT: www.roadscholar.org/groups

ROAD SCHOLAR®